

Latin Instructor
Beginning August 2022

Culver Academies, a boarding high school of 840 students in north-central Indiana, is seeking qualified candidates for a full-time World Languages and Cultures faculty position effective August 2022.

Qualified candidates will hold at least a BA in Latin or Classics, with several years of teaching experience at the secondary school level preferred.

Responsibilities include the ability to teach all levels of Latin language and culture from introductory to advanced topics in a 4 x 4 intensive block schedule, as well as making significant contributions to the athletic or residential life program of the school, as personal interest and institutional needs dictate.

Culver Academies places a premium on a teaching and learning culture in which faculty routinely talk about practice, observe each other in the practice of teaching, create curriculum together, and teach each other what they know about teaching and learning. Culver Academies uses a spoken Latin approach in a proficiency-oriented department, and a successful candidate would have an interest in collaborating with a colleague to design and implement a Latin program that emphasizes a communicative, active approach to learning about the Latin language and Ancient Mediterranean cultures with inclusivity and equity.

Interested candidates who find themselves in sympathy with Culver's Teaching and Learning Model and supportive of Culver's Expectations for All Instructors should express interest by completing our faculty inquiry form. More information about living, learning, and leading at Culver Academies is at www.culver.org/facultypositions.

Culver Academies is an equal-opportunity employer. Salary and benefits are competitive.